

DISCLOSURE

1. I, Leonard Wantchekon, declare to have no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in the paper “Can Informed Public Deliberation Overcome Clientelism? Experimental Evidence from Benin.”
2. The project has been funded by the Institute for Empirical Research in Political Economy (IERPE). The institute is a non-profit research center and does not have any stake in the outcome of the study.
3. The research was implemented by the IERPE on the basis of signed contracts with the campaign management teams of Dr. Yayi Boni, Mr. Adrien Houngbedji, Mr. Lehadi Soglo and Mr. Bruno Amoussou. IERPE does not have an Internal Review Board.