

Disclosure Statement

The author declares that he has no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper. Data on moving cellular calls were supplied free of charge by a cell phone provider on the condition that the authors do not reveal the identity of the said provider. The provider scaled the call data prior to giving it to the authors. The provider did not request a review of the findings prior to submission of the paper or circulation. The Institute of Business and Economic Research (IBER) at UC Berkeley provided $1,000 in funding for the project in 2007. The IBER did not request a review of the findings prior to submission or circulation.
