

How Effective Are U.S. Renewable Energy Subsidies in Cutting Greenhouse Gases?

Disclosure Statement – Francisco de la Chesnaye

Sources of financial support for this research: None

Sources of financial support over the past 3 years: The author declares that he has received no external financial support in addition to his normal and customary salary from his employer, the Electric Power Research Institute (EPRI). EPRI is a non-profit 501(c)(3) organization whose funding members include electric companies, federal, state, local, governments in the U.S. as well as foreign governments.

Rights to review the paper prior to submission: The author declares that no party has had the right to review this manuscript prior to submission.

IRB approval: No IRB approval was required for this paper. The paper reviews existing literature and does not involve human subjects.

