

The research reported in our paper was not the result of a for-pay consulting relationship and neither us nor our employers have a financial interest in the topic of the paper which might constitute a conflict of interest.