

January 3, 2022

The University of Chicago
Booth School of Business
5807 South Woodlawn Avenue
Chicago, Illinois 60637

American Economic Journal: Economic Policy
2014 Broadway, Suite 305
Nashville, TN 37203

Re: AEJ:EP Submission, "Efficiency and Incidence of Taxation with Free Entry and Love-of-Variety Preferences"

To whom it may concern:

I provide specific answers to the five specific numbered questions contained in the American Economic Association disclosure document (http://www.aeaweb.org/aea_journals/AEA_Disclosure_Policy.pdf).

1. We received financial support from several organizations, as described in acknowledgements of the paper. These grants were used to purchase data, merge data, and pay for research assistants. All of these organizations have supported research in the past.
2. I have not received any financial support in the past three years from a party that would have a financial, ideological, or political stake in the paper referenced above.
3. I am not an officer, director, or board member in a profit or non-profit organization that has a relevant relationship to the contents of the article referenced above.
4. None of my close relatives have received any financial support for my work on the paper referenced above. None of my close relatives have received any financial support in the past three years from a party that would have a financial, ideological, or political stake in the paper referenced above. None of my close relatives are an officer, director, or board member in a profit or non-profit organization that has a relevant relationship to the contents of the article referenced above.
5. No party had the right to review the paper before submission.

Sincerely,

Matthew J. Notowidigdo
Professor of Economics
University of Chicago Booth School of Business