

Disclosure statement for Catherine Wolfram

Catherine Wolfram is the faculty co-director of The E2e Project, which promotes careful, robust analysis of energy efficiency policies. She is also the faculty co-director of the Energy Institute at Haas, a research institute.

I declare that I have no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this article.

This article uses publicly available data, so the authors did not seek IRB approval.