

Disclosure Statement: Silvana Tenreyro

- (1) Every submitted article should state the sources of financial support for the particular research it describes. If none, that fact should be stated.

During the past three years, I received research grants from 1) the European Research Council under the European Community's ERC starting grant agreement 240852 Research on Economic Fluctuations and Globalization, 2) STICERD's starting grant, 3) Fondation Banque de France; and 4) Bank of Spain as part of CREI's Associate professorship.

- (2) Each author of a submitted article should identify each interested party from whom he or she has received significant financial support, summing to at least $10,000 in the past three years, in the form of consultant fees, retainers, grants and the like. The disclosure requirement also includes in kind support, such as providing access to data. If the support in question comes with a non disclosure obligation, that fact should be stated, along with as much information as the obligation permits. If there are no such sources of funds, that fact should be stated explicitly. An "interested" party is any individual, group, or organization that has a financial, ideological, or political stake related to the article.

I serve as external MPC member for the Central Bank of Mauritius and receive a fee plus expenses coverage from the Bank of Mauritius.

- (3) Each author should disclose any paid or unpaid positions as officer, director, or board member of relevant non profit organizations or profit making entities. A "relevant" organization is one whose policy positions, goals, or financial interests relate to the article.

I am a Board Member of the Review of Economic Studies.

I am a Member At Large (and sit in the executive committee) of the Council of the European Economic Association.

I chaired the Women in Economics's committee of the European Economic Association for the past 3 years---just stepped down, but still sit in the committee.

Both the Review of Economic Studies and the European Economic Review are non-profit organizations.

- (4) The disclosures required above apply to any close relative or partner of any author. Neither my partner nor any relative has any policy position, goals, or financial interests related to the article.

- (5) Each author must disclose if another party had the right to review the paper prior to its circulation.

No

6) For published articles, information on relevant potential conflicts of interest will be made available to the public.
