

Disclosure Statement for the paper, “Trade, Tastes and Nutrition in India.”

The author declares that he has no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.

I received funding from several academic sources at Princeton University. The Fellowship of Woodrow Wilson Scholars and the International Economics Section at Princeton provided funding during the period that the first draft was written. The Center for Economic Policy Studies at Princeton provided a small grant (around $1500) for purchasing the Indian Harvest Data. None of these sources had a financial, ideological, or political stake related to the article.