

American Economic Journals Disclosure Statement

(Please include one for every author of the paper.)

Date: 1st March 2018

Author Name: Suresh de Mel

Manuscript Title: “Labour Drops: Experimental Evidence on the Return to Additional Labour in Microenterprises”

Disclosure Statement: Funding for this study was received from the National Science Foundation (SES0820375), the World Bank, DfID, the Knowledge for Change Trust Fund, the Diagnostic Facility for Shared Growth Trust Fund, the Strategic Research Program Trust Fund, and the Templeton Foundation. These funding sources are included in the acknowledgements. and while the World Bank had the right to review the manuscript, none of these funders had the right to request changes in the analysis. The surveys and interventions associated with this research study were carried out by Kandy Consulting Group, where I served as the main resource person for directing the field work of this research study. I am not an employee, director, or board member of any of the above mentioned organizations nor of any other organization that has a financial, ideological or political stake related to the article. My family members do not have any interests to disclose. No other party had the right to review the manuscript.