

Disclosure Statement: David Figlio

“Family Disadvantage and the Gender Gap in Behavioral and Educational Outcomes”

September 10, 2017

1. Sources of financial support for the research.

I have received funding from the National Institutes of Child Health and Human Development, the U.S. Department of Education, the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, and the Smith Richardson Foundation to support the research program of which this research is a part.

2. Each interested party from whom he or she has received significant financial support, summing to at least $10,000 in the past three years, in the form of consultant fees, retainers, grants and the like.

I have received $10,000 or more over the past three years from the following organizations. None of these would be considered a conflict of interest.

Grants from National Science Foundation, National Institutes of Child Health and Human Development, U.S. Department of Education, Laura and John Arnold Foundation, Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, Smith Richardson Foundation, Thomas B. Fordham Institute; honorarium from University of Wisconsin-Madison.

3. Each author should disclose any paid or unpaid positions as officer, director, or board member of relevant non-profit organizations or profit-making entities. A “relevant” organization is one whose policy positions, goals, or financial interests relate to the article.

Nothing to report.

4. The disclosures required above apply to any close relative or partner of any author.

No spousal or family-related potential COIs of which I am aware.

5. Each author must disclose if another party had the right to review the paper prior to its circulation.

No other party had the right to review the paper prior to its circulation.

6. IRB Approval

This project was ruled exempt by the Northwestern University and University of Florida Institutional Review Boards, and no further review is required.