

Disclosure Statement

I, Alberto Cavallo, a co-author of "Tariff Passthrough at the Border and at the Store: Evidence from US Trade Policy", declare that financial support for the research in this paper was provided by Harvard Business School.

I am a co-founder and have an ownership stake in PriceStats LLC, a private company that uses scraped online retail data to compute inflation indices. Some of PriceStats' proprietary data is used in this paper. It was provided without any conditions to review the findings before publication.

I am also an ad-honorem member of the Technical Advisory Committees of the US Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), where he provides advice on various issues, including the use of online data in the construction of Consumer Price Indices and Import/Export price indices.
