

Carol Corrado Author Disclosure Statement for:

Intangible Capital and Modern Economies

Individual Disclosure Statements in PDF format must be submitted for each author. Each statement must include the paper title and the author's name at the top. Statements must (i) correspond with the funding sources acknowledged in the introductory footnote; (ii) acknowledge IRB approval (if applicable); and (iii) report any other potential conflict of interest. If there is nothing to disclose you are still required to supply a PDF statement formally making that claim.

- (i) I received financial support for work related to the subjects and material in this paper from the OECD Economics Directorate project “Value of data (VOD) in digital based-business models: methodological framework and economic policy implications” and the European Commission’s Directorate General for Economic and Financial affairs (procurement procedure ECFIN/2020/OP/0001 – Provision of Industry level growth and productivity data with special focus on intangible assets – 2020/S 114-275561.
- (ii) IRB approval is not applicable.
- (iii) I and/or my immediate family have no conflicts of interests regarding the subject matter or data used in this paper. My research fellowship positions at The Conference Board (New York), McDonough School Center for Business and Public Policy (Georgetown University), and National Institute for Economic and Social Research (United Kingdom) also do not conflict.
