

Disclosure Statement

Paper Title: The Incarceration Penalty and Black-White Economic Inequality: The Case of Baltimore

Co-Author's Name: Lauren Russell

Relevant Organizations

I am a research affiliate at the Samuel DuBois Cook Center on Social Equity at Duke University (2021-present).

Data

For this project, we utilize the 2017 Baltimore National Asset Scorecard of Communities of Color (NASCC) survey. This data is proprietary and was obtained from the Samuel Dubois Cook Center on Social Equity at Duke University. Our research results may be reviewed for confidentiality purposes by authorized University agents. Survey records are kept in a database with anonymous identifiers for each participant and cannot be traced back to each participant. IRB approval to use the Baltimore NASCC survey was granted via Duke University.

Other than the relevant organizations and data disclosures above, I have no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.
