

Posted by Robert Kaestner

Posted on 3/3/2015 5:09 PM

A clever quasi-experimental analysis. However, why should we believe anything about the median when there are negative VSL's for over 25 percent of the sample? Also, the VSL will differ across people systematically by age, wealth and many other observable characteristics. So who is the median? No citation to Murphy and Topel (2006) seems like an important omission.