

Disclosure Statement for American Economic Review
Title: “When Product Markets Become Collective Traps: The Case of Social Media”
Author: Leonardo Bursztyn

I declare that I have no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in the paper other than the following: This past summer, I built a team and started developing a commercial mobile app called NOMO to help people spend less time on social media and more time on other, healthier activities.

This research was partly funded through grants from the Social Sciences Division at the University of Chicago.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Leonardo Bursztyn', with a stylized flourish at the end.

Leonardo Bursztyn

February 22, 2025