Disclosure Statement

Title: The Meritocratic Consensus and Stratification in Higher Education

Author: Zachary Bleemer

The author holds degrees from Amherst College and the University of California, Berkeley and has current or recent employment or affiliation with Princeton University, Brown University, Harvard University, the University of California, Berkeley, and Yale University. These institutions all have per-student instructional expenditures and average SAT scores in the top 10 percent of four-year colleges and universities in the United States and are arguably among the biggest beneficiaries of the trends discussed in this paper. The author declares that he has no other relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.

Disclosure Statement

Title: The Meritocratic Consensus and Stratification in Higher Education

Author: Jesse Rothstein

The author holds degrees from Harvard University and the University of California, Berkeley and is or has been employed at the University of California, Berkeley and Princeton University. These institutions all have per-student instructional expenditures and average SAT scores in the top 10 percent of four-year colleges and universities in the United States and are arguably among the biggest beneficiaries of the trends discussed in this paper. The author declares that he has no other relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.