

Disclosure Statement

Return-to-Work Policies and Labor Supply in Disability Insurance Programs

Arezou Zaresani

a.zaresani@gmail.com

This paper was part of a chapter of my PhD thesis at the University of Calgary. I have received financial aid from the University of Calgary while being a PhD student there and working on this paper. I am currently a research fellow at the Melbourne Institute of Applied Economics and Social Research at the university of Melbourne. I have received research grants and salary from the University of Melbourne while working on this paper.

This study uses proprietary data provided by the Alberta Human Services. I have obtained Institutional Review Board (IRB) approval from the University of Calgary to use the data. The data access agreement involves a request for review of the findings prior to their release and I am obligated to keep the data confidential and therefore I am not allowed to share it with any third party. The interpretation and conclusions contained in the paper are mine and do not necessarily represent the views of the Government of Alberta and they do not express any opinion in relation to this study.

This manuscript has not been published and is not under consideration for publication elsewhere and I have no conflict of interest to disclose.