confidential information, review for adherence to governmental positions, review for potential intellectual property interests, request delay of publication, deny publication, etc.)

V. Is there anything else that the journal should be aware of in regards to potential conflict of interest you may have regarding this manuscript?

The data used are proprietary. The data can be accessed in the SIPER Giannini Data Center for replication but cannot be posted if the paper is published, in the journal webpage. We would post the readme and all programs to replicate the results on the paper webpage when published. Similar procedures are done for papers published using data from the same proprietary source in the AER, RE Stat, AJAE, to name a few journals, and we would follow the same procedure.
