BECOME A MEMBER OF THE AMERICAN ECONOMIC ASSOCIATION
WHY JOIN?

Since 1885, the American Economic Association (AEA) has been a widely respected forum for economic discussion and a preeminent source for authoritative research. Every year, over 20,000 members from academia, business, and government benefit from AEA programs and services. The AEA strives for excellence and helps shape the future of the profession.

ADVANCE YOUR CAREER

Whether you are a student, a mid-career economist, or an emerging scholar, AEA member resources can be an important part of your success. Members gain access to the latest research, publish and present their work, find job openings, develop field expertise, and collaborate with peers and scholars.

The AEA supports established and prospective economists with career-enhancing programs and services.

✓ Collaboration … Meetings, continuing education, and committee participation foster professional relationships and shared experiences. Only AEA members can submit their papers for presentation at the annual AEA meeting of more than 13,000 economists.

✓ Career Services … Hundreds of recruiters from leading universities and organizations use the JOE Network to find talented professionals. Users can automate the search process, submit applications, and manage reference letter requests, all in one place.

✓ Peer Recognition … Member awards, such as the John Bates Clark Medal, acknowledge the contributions of top economists and researchers. Recipients often cite the AEA as a critical partner in their success.

✓ Learning Resources … Find exclusive content at the AEA website, including reference materials, government data, newsletters, salary surveys, grants, graduate programs, JEL Code guides, and more.

✓ Member Savings … Take advantage of special pricing on article submission fees, continuing education courses, AEA archives on JSTOR, and print journal options.

✓ Prestigious Research … Members receive complimentary access to the AEA journals, including the JSTOR archive of older issues.

✓ Member Communications … Stay abreast with AEA Research Highlights, “Table of Contents” alerts, membership announcements, and webcasts from recent meetings.
